COMMUNITY-LED HOUSING

We recognise that you want to build communities, not just houses.

Members and supporters of Chapeltown Cohousing in Leeds, celebrating the opening of their new community.

Wrigleys has been advising on community-led housing projects since we were established in the late nineties and our team are nationally regarded as experts in the sector.

Our work spans community land trusts, cohousing developments, housing co-operatives and mutual homeownership societies. Our lawyers are friendly, experienced and empathetic, and we develop trusted, lasting relationships with our clients.

WHY YOU SHOULD SPEAK TO WRIGLEYS

Clear Pricing	We understand the importance of budget certainty, especially at the early stages of a project. We always aim to give fee estimates for discrete pieces of work and can agree fixed fees in some cases. This gives you the comfort that the quality legal advice you need will be provided at the price you have agreed in advance.
Experience	We have been working with community-led housing developments for decades and understand the way these unique projects work and their bespoke requirements.
Empathy	We know that developing a community-led housing project is a significant task with huge emotional investment and we will be there to help guide you through the legal process.
National Presence	We are based in Leeds, Sheffield and Newcastle, but advise clients all over the UK. We host regular events for community-led housing groups to come together and share their knowledge and experiences. We are involved in national debates and policy discussions about the community-led housing sector and regularly speak at conferences and seminars.

“You have guided us with skill and patience to this stage on our journey and in a world where there are so many stories about frustration with solicitors, it is so good for us to have found a team in which we are totally confident. Thank you.”
